The Gordie Center at the University of Virginia is a nonprofit organization that aims to honor the life of Lynn Gordon “Gordie” Bailey, Jr. and prevent alcohol and hazing related injuries and death in young adults, like Gordie.
Dear Friends,

As we welcome the change of seasons, we ask you to join us in celebrating our many efforts to promote healthy student behaviors. We hope you enjoy reading about the ways the Gordie Center is making a positive impact on campuses around the country, including our home, at the University of Virginia (UVa).

This summer we welcomed graduate assistant Yena Kim and undergraduate assistant Marissa Kuo. Yena is pursuing a Master’s of Education degree in Higher Education Administration at UVa and earned her undergraduate degree from the College of William and Mary. Marissa is a fourth-year student at UVa where she is pursuing a Bachelor’s degree in history and global education.

For the past year, I’ve had the privilege of serving on two national initiatives to improve student health and wellness: The North-American Interfraternity Conference’s Presidential Commission on Alcohol Use and the National Collegiate Athletics Association’s Sexual Assault Task Force. Both groups will submit best practice recommendations in late spring 2016.

In addition to presenting HAZE and information on the Gordie’s Call campaign at national conferences, Deirdre Feeney, Holly Deering and I delivered day-long Step UP! Bystander Intervention facilitation trainings at several campuses. These included the University of Maryland—College Park, East Carolina University and Virginia Military Institute.

We are so grateful for Leslie and Michael Lanahan’s continued support of our work and are thankful for the many individuals and organizations that share our vision of ending hazing and hazardous drinking. We are especially appreciative of the student organizations around the country who work every day to educate their peers on the signs of overdose and how to intervene at the first sign of trouble.

In appreciation,

Susan Bruce
Director, Gordie Center for Substance Abuse Prevention
Thank you!

The Gordie Center for Substance Abuse Prevention at the University of Virginia honors the memory of Lynn Gordon “Gordie” Bailey, Jr., who died of an alcohol overdose at the University of Colorado, Boulder after a fraternity initiation/hazing ceremony. Gordie’s mother and stepfather, Leslie and Michael Lanahan, created the Gordie Foundation in his memory and merged with the University of Virginia’s prevention efforts in 2010. The Gordie Center is committed to ensuring that Gordie’s story continues to impact students by challenging attitudes about the true risks of hazing and alcohol abuse.

In May, Leslie and Michael Lanahan received the 2015 Hope Award from Phoenix House Texas, a leading nonprofit substance abuse treatment provider. Leslie and Michael were honored for “their courageous and monumental efforts in raising awareness and establishing a nationwide campaign to fight substance abuse.” The award was presented at the Triumph for Teens luncheon where actress Robin Wright spoke about her work advocating for prevention, education and support for recovery. D Magazine hosted a reception at the Lanahan’s home to mark the occasion. Deirdre was thrilled to travel to Dallas to celebrate with Leslie and Michael!

In March, 2015, Susie and Deirdre attended the 2nd annual Virginia Collegiate Recovery Conference in Richmond, Virginia along with a Hoos in Recovery student member. The conference was a great opportunity to hear about model campus recovery communities including Rutgers University and the University of Texas—Austin and hear updates from the Transforming Youth Recovery project. We enjoyed the opportunity to network with treatment professionals and representatives from campuses in Virginia, North Carolina, Maryland, Washington, D.C. and West Virginia.

The fall edition of the Virginia Magazine featured a story about the Gordie Center’s work to provide early intervention services and recovery support to University of Virginia students through the Brief Alcohol Screening and Intervention for College Students (BASICS) program and Hoos in Recovery peer support group. Several UVa alumni in recovery from substance abuse have contacted the Gordie Center to congratulate us on our work and offer their help!

Deirdre and three members of the Gordie Center’s Alcohol & Drug Abuse Prevention Team (ADAPT) peer education group attended the November 2014 BACCHUS General Assembly in Orlando, Florida. The Gordie Center hosted an exhibit throughout the conference, seen by over 600 college peer educators and campus professionals. We provided free materials and those who signed the “Pledge to Check” received Gordie sunglasses. Deirdre and ADAPT member Megan Brosnan presented a well-received educational session on HAZE.

Deirdre also facilitated discussions following HAZE at each of the three APPLE Conferences in Reston, Virginia, Orlando, Florida and Myrtle Beach, South Carolina. See pages 10–12 for more information on APPLE!

Over the past year, we worked with a team of six MBA students at UVa’s Darden School of Business to develop a strategic marketing plan. The team from the Community Consultants of Darden researched our online presence as well as sales and donation trends. We have implemented several recommendations, notably creating a student social media position to increase our social media presence. Last spring, our student intern re-designed the Gordie’s Call memorial wall to ensure information was current, easy to access and visually appealing. In the coming year, we are merging our two websites to increase our online presence and create a clearer vision of our services. We are also exploring a partnership with a national organization to create co-branded educational materials to reach a broader audience. Stay tuned!

“[HAZE] showed how decisions affected people around you. Very effective!”

Our 2015 outstanding peer education group is the Alcohol & Drug Abuse Prevention Team (ADAPT) at the University of Virginia—a small organization with a large impact. Last year, 18 ADAPT members reached nearly 4,000 students through 55 presentations to fraternities, sororities and high schools. Co-chair and fourth-year student Margaret Lowe gave over 29 presentations in her three semesters with ADAPT, reaching over 2,200 UVa students.

Tragically, Margaret passed away on September 1, 2015 after sustaining a cerebral hemorrhage. She was engaged in one of her favorite activities—running—when she collapsed. Two days earlier, she had presented to nearly 500 students on the risks of Molly/MDMA.

As the ADAPT co-chair, Margaret worked closely with the Gordie Center and served on the UVa Hazing Prevention Advisory Committee. She once facilitated a discussion after HAZE, and had to stop to compose herself. She later explained that she just could not understand how anyone could put a friend at risk in the way Gordie’s fraternity did.

In the wake of this loss, ADAPT is focused on reflecting Margaret’s positive attitude and boundless energy. Please join us in remembering this inspiring student whose work to prevent alcohol abuse and hazing ended far too soon.

“Margaret wouldn’t want all of us to be so sad. ADAPT is going to have a really strong year. We’ve banded together and, as a team, are going to carry on Margaret’s spirit of intense drive and her will to radiate positivity.”

—Libby Firer, ADAPT member
The University of Virginia is one of eight institutions taking part in the National Hazing Prevention Consortium, a multi-year research-to-practice initiative led by StopHazing, Inc. to build an evidence base for hazing prevention on college campuses. Susie, Deirdre and Holly all serve on the UVa Hazing Prevention Working Group to implement these initiatives.

This spring, we created and piloted “Positive Chapter Expectations,” an interactive program designed to help participants:

- Recognize a continuum of hazing behaviors
- Understand the impact of hazing
- Learn effective intervention skills
- Become aware of hazing prevention & response resources

- Increase motivation to intervene

By the end of the pilot program, students were significantly more likely to report they would take action in the following situations:

- A new member was encouraged to drink excessive amounts of alcohol
- New members went along with the activity
- Some new members are clearly uncomfortable
- The activities are considered tradition

This year, we will develop and test versions of the program for athletic teams and other student organizations and train students to facilitate sessions. Once we’ve fine-tuned the program we will make it available to other schools as part of the Consortium’s outreach efforts.

During the 2015 BACCHUS General Assembly in the Washington, DC area, Deirdre will present a two-part educational session on hazing issues. The first program will feature HAZE and will be followed by the Positive Chapter Expectations presentation.

Over 2/3 of participants (69%) felt “more knowledgeable about what constitutes hazing” by the end of the program.
The Gordie Center’s APPLE Conferences are the leading national training symposiums dedicated to substance abuse prevention and health promotion for student-athletes and athletics department administrators. The National Collegiate Athletics Association (NCAA) has provided significant funding for these annual conferences since 1991. In 2015, we hosted an APPLE conference just for NCAA Division II schools. Among all three conferences, a total of 105 schools attended:
